

COMMUNITY BEAT

As a consumer, you have the right to know what you are buying. But it's not always easy to get the information you need. That's why the FTC has created a new tool to help you make better choices. The tool is called the Bulk Order Checklist, and it's available at www.ftc.gov/bulkorder. The checklist is a 10-point list of questions that you can use to help you decide if a bulk order is a good idea. The questions cover things like: How long has the company been in business? What are the terms of the order? How will the goods be delivered? And how will the company handle any problems that might arise? The checklist is a great resource for anyone who is considering a bulk order. It's a simple, easy-to-use tool that can help you avoid many of the common pitfalls of bulk buying. So if you're thinking about placing a bulk order, be sure to check out the Bulk Order Checklist. It's the best way to make sure you're getting the most out of your purchase.

For more information, visit www.ftc.gov/bulkorder.

For more information, visit www.ftc.gov/bulkorder.

COMMENTS, QUESTIONS, OR KUDOS

Have a comment, question, or kudos? We'd love to hear from you. Please email us at sentinel@ftc.gov.