SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

Each year, the FTC, along with the Antitrust Division of the Department of report in August 1999. The report is available at <http://www.ftc.gov/ftc/press/2009/08/082109a.htm>.

The Commission refined and improved its divestiture orders partly as a result of that study. Those improvements included shortening the divestiture period, more often requiring up-front buyers, and requiring monitors more frequently, particularly in divestitures in technology and pharmaceutical industries. These changes were implemented almost immediately, and the Commission and its staff still rely on the findings from the study as they craft and enforce the Commission's remedies.

Given the benefits resulting from the prior study, on January 16, 2015, the Commission published a Federal Register Notice ("FRN"), 80 FR 2423, seeking comment under the PRA on a new FTC remedy study that will focus on more recent orders, spanning the years 2006 through 2012, and will evaluate both structural and non-structural relief. In response to the PRA Notice, the Commission received four comments related to the proposed remedy study. These four comments are available at <http://www.ftc.gov/ftc/press/2015/06/150616a.htm>.

II. FTC's Proposed Study

Between the end of 1994 and 2013, the Commission issued 281 orders in merger cases. Of those, the Commission proposes to study all ninety orders issued from 2006 through 2012.<sup>1</sup> The Commission chose this period because it is sufficiently long ago to assess the Commission's proposed study of structural remedies in merger cases. The Commission's proposed study will focus on more recent orders, spanning the years 2006 through 2012, and will evaluate both structural and non-structural relief. In response to the PRA Notice, the Commission received four comments related to the proposed remedy study. These four comments are available at <http://www.ftc.gov/ftc/press/2015/06/150616a.htm>.

<sup>1</sup> The January 16, 2015 FRN stated that the study would include 92 orders. Two of those orders, C4231, <http://www.ftc.gov/ftc/press/2011/01/110111a.htm>, and C4299, <http://www.ftc.gov/ftc/press/2011/01/110111a.htm>, relate to transactions that were abandoned. Accordingly, those have been eliminated from the proposed remedy study.

<sup>2</sup> The January 16, 2015 FRN stated that the study would involve 47 different divestiture buyers. Upon further review, staff has determined that 56 buyers purchased divested assets relating to the orders included in the proposed study.

<sup>3</sup> This number is lower than the 280 participants estimated in the January 16, 2015 FRN because, upon further review, staff has determined that there are fewer significant competitors in the markets affected by the 51 orders.

geographic and product markets. The FTC anticipates sending orders to file special reports to competitors in approximately 190 product and geographic markets, and that approximately 250 market competitors will receive the orders. FTC staff
